

STANLEY BARTON, ALBANY, N.Y.

By THOMSON & ROBERTS.

50 lines of the DAILY GAZETTE are as follows, Cost.

THE CITY, by carfare, per cent. $7.00

MAIL, ONE YEAR, per cent. 16

TWO MONTHS, per cent. 8.00

THREE MONTHS, per cent. 6.00

L.M. THOMSON.

W. G. ROBERTS.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

THE NEWS.

Our dispatches last night brought the news of the return to Ohio of that dyed-in-the-wool traitor, C. L. Vallandigham. His arrival caused a great fluttering among the faithful copperheads. Fears were entertained that trouble might grow out of his presence at Dayton. Vallandigham's return to Ohio at this particular juncture, has a deeper significance than appears upon the surface. He could have returned as well last January as now for all the Government has done to prevent it, but at no time since his banishment has his friends, now in armed rebellion for the destruction of the Republic, been in so much need of his active co-operation as now. General Sherman is driving all before him in the south, and General Grant has already commenced the siege of Richmond, after having dealt the great rebel army some terrible blows from which it cannot recover. How opportune to them now would be a copperhead riot in Ohio incited and led by such a faithful friend as Vallandigham! An outbreak there at this time which would require a few thousand troops to put down, would be a virtual reinforcement of the rebel army as if they had been conscripted for that particular purpose; and the temptation is too great for the Ohio martyr to resist. It will be seen that the political convention at which he made his appearance, made him a delegate to the copperhead convention which meets in Chicago next month. Why shouldn't they?

Other important matters of news, among which is the (probably) premature report of the capture of Fort Darling by Grant, will be found in the appropriate column.

The State Union Sunday School Convention.

The Wisconsin Union Sunday School Convention which met in this city on Tuesday afternoon, will formally close its session this (Thursday) evening, although a large number of the delegates took their departure this afternoon. It was probably one of the most interesting and profitable meetings of the kind ever held since the organization of the association, and no idea of its importance may be formed when we state that over seven hundred delegates arrived here by railroad, besides three or four hundred more who came in by their own means of conveyance. The sessions of the Convention were densely crowded, requiring two and sometimes three of our largest churches to accommodate the interested audiences. The reports of the different officers, as well as the remarks elicited from gentlemen who represented different sections of the State, went to show that the Sunday School cause in Wisconsin was never in such a prosperous condition as at the present moment, and was receiving so much attention from parents and all others interested in the rising generation, as at present. The friends and projectors of the State Convention have ample reason to congratulate themselves upon the success it has met with.

General Schurz.

It has been stated in several of the public journals that General Schurz has been placed in command of a convalescent camp in Nashville, his predecessor being a captain, and that in consequence he has tendered his resignation. We understand that there is no truth in this statement. General Schurz left his division in the Cumberland army in consequence of the consolidation of the 117th and 127th Corps, under the command of General Hooker, and reported to General Schurz, who promised him a command in the field as soon as a vacancy should occur. Meanwhile, he was charged with the duty of organizing a reserve force near Nashville, consisting of a large body of troops just arrived from the North. These troops were afterward detached, in part, for the defense of our railroad lines, and General Schurz is now awaiting further orders from General Sherman. The stories of his appointment to the command of a convalescent camp, and of his resignation, are without foundation in fact.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Chicago Tribune, writes from Tennessee: "I saw a gentleman a few days since, direct from Atlanta, and who informed me that John Bell was there, surly and disappointed. He is severe on everybody—on mankind in general. He states that he would never have joined the rebels, had not parties having the reputation of being Union men, called on him, and urged him to go into the current that he might control it. Mr. Bell says he yielded to these arguments, and solicitations; but no sooner had he arrayed himself with the traitors, than he lost the confidence of real Union men, without gaining that of the fire-eaters."

The present graduating class of the West Point Academy, numbers only 27. It began with 90 members. It is not unusual for more than 50 per cent. of the entering class to graduate, but in this case, less than 28 per cent. graduate. The importance of admitting cadets to the Academy otherwise than by open competitive examinations, is clearly proved by the history of this class. Cadet Lydecker, who is at the head of the graduating class, was appointed in this way by Gen. Sickles.

After reading six or seven hundred pages of Gen. McClellan's report, the Cincinnati Gazette says: "It is the whimping plea of a sultry lout, accusing others of the nuisance in which he has been detected. It is no military report. No such document ever emanated from a soldier."

NEWSPAPER ARCHIVE

THURSDAY, JUNE 16, 1864.

For President,
ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
OF ILLINOIS.For Vice-President,
ANDREW JOHNSON,
OF TENNESSEE.

A Revolt within a Revolution.

With Vallandigham loose in Ohio, whether he has doubtless joined to incite a rebellion against the "arbitrary" rule of Abraham Lincoln; with Seymour as Governor of New York and ready at any time to "pause" with his "friends" in putting down the rebellion; with the copperheads all over the North ripe for revolt, it is pleasant to know that our enemies in the Confederacy have troubles similar to our own. North Carolina, never heartily in favor of secession, has now got her back up and demands peace upon the very terms that they know it can be obtained.

They have two candidates in the field for Governor; Yancey, who was originally elected over a secessionist of the South Carolina school is the Jeff. Davis candidate for re-election, while W. W. Holden is the "pence" candidate. He knows perfectly well how great and outrageous was the fraud of secession, and is not backward nor mealy-mouthed in his exposition of the wicked treason. Holden is likely to be elected, unless Jeff can interfere in some way, and he proposes to do it. So he writes to his tool Vance in this wise:

"I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made, by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to arm and conspire to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost."

You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil warfare which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-eager desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than suspected elsewhere, you will permit them to gather such strength as to require more violent measures than are now needed?" With your influence and position, the promoters of the unfounded discontent now prevalent in your State could be put down without the use of physical force, if you would abandon a policy of conciliation and set them at defiance. In this course, frankly and firmly pursued, you will rally around you all that is best and noblest in your State, and your triumph will be bloodless. If the contrary policy be adopted, I much fear you will be driven to the use of force to repress treason.

In either event, however, be assured that you will have my cordial concurrence and assistance in maintaining with you the honor, dignity and fair name of your State, and in your efforts to crush treason, whether incipient as I believe it now to be, or more matured, as I believe, if not firmly met, it will in our future inevitably be.

Mr. LINCOLN was about the last man in Washington to hear of his nomination on Thursday. A dispatch was sent to him, but it did not reach him, announcing that he was nominated by acclamation. Towards night he was looking over the war telegrams in Mr. Stanton's office, when a dispatch was brought to him stating that Mr. Johnson was nominated Vice President. Mr. Lincoln asked, "Is it customary to nominate a Vice President first?" A friend asked him in astonishment if he had not heard who was nominated for President? and Mr. Lincoln replied that he had not! There probably were but few men in Washington who had not heard of the action of the Convention at that

THE WATERTOWN Daily Reformer relates an anecdote of Gen. Grant. It says: "When the General was a Lieutenant, he was stationed for some time at Sackett's Harbor, and in those days paid frequent visits to our village. He was a famous checker player, and was wont to spend many an hour at the old American hotel in this absorbing game. But there was one of our citizens (whose name we are forbidden to mention) who could beat the Lieutenant at his favorite game. But young Grant would never give up, and would insist on his competitor playing with him until he came out ahead, which he would at last always do. To secure this end he sometimes kept his friend up nearly all night, and would stay in town three days, studying his long-headed moves, and forcing his opponent to play until he beat him in the end. If the man declined playing when he was ahead, the Lieutenant was offended, and thought him ungentlemanly in the extreme. Grant is now playing checkers in the same style with Leo on the Virginia board."

HOW MEN BECOME HARDENED TO DANGER.—The longer men indulge in war the more reckless of danger they become. A correspondent writing from Gen. Sherman's army, relates the following very curious incident:

Use renders these men cool and even callous in the presence of these messengers of death. Yesterday a man on the skirmish line received a ball in the cheek, which came out behind his ear, through the strong chords of the neck. A stretcher was brought, but he kicked it over, with an oath, walked to the surgeon, and had his wound probed and dressed, and returned to his company, swearing he would "make the rebels pay for that." He was from an Eastern regiment.

A CERTAIN MAN, who is very rich now, was very poor when he was a boy. When asked how he got his riches, he replied: "My father taught me never to play till my work was finished, and never to spend my money until I had earned it. If I had but an hour's work in a day, I must do that the first thing, and in an hour. After this I was allowed to play; and then I could play with much more pleasure than if I had the thought of an unfinished task before my mind. I early formed the habit of doing everything in time, and soon it became easy to do so. It is to this I owe my prosperity." Let every one who reads this do likewise.

SODA WATER.—Cold, sparkling and delicious! at the Philadelphia Drug Store. May 22nd 1864.

BALTIMORE NATIONAL CONVENTION

As described by Benjamin F. Taylor, Scenes, Incidents, and Effects.

Correspondence of the Chicago Evening Journal.

BALTIMORE, June 8, 1864.

To play Secretary to the National Union Convention was no part of my errand. The details of its action are already before the world; a few touches here and there, a few dashes over the wires, and they were struck by lightning and immortality together.

But I may try to give your readers, in a breath or two of short sentences, a rough sketch of the scene. When I reached Baltimore, on Tuesday evening, an organization had been effected; Maine and Oregon had met together and little Rhody sat at the Golden Gate; a mob, civil, loyal, purposeful, and yet a mob had become an organ of voice, and the voice was ready to speak. The morrow was to be a Ponte-est and yet not Babel. Inspired with one hope, one faith, one love, they were to have one utterance. It was not a deliberative body, for there was nothing to be weighed. It was not an executive body, for there was nothing to be done. There was only something to say, and it said it. We all knew what it would be, but we listened for it. Men traversed half a continent; nay, men embarked on two oceans to utter it.

So it was on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. Front Street Theatre is thrown open for this strange drama with one act; this with one word in it. The lofty ceiling is encircled with the flag; the stars hang in clusters from column and wall, like ripened fruit, that once shone on Saratoga and Bennington, on Vicksburg and Mission Ridge; the stars that will light the way to Richmond, and look down serene upon dead rebellion.

And beneath the heaven of the flag, in one solid column that fills the body of the theatre, are the word-bearers of the loyal land. There is nothing strange in the crowd that I can see; sprinkles of silver among the brown heads; brows of care and eyes without a cloud. Nothing strange, until I think that these men represent every road on the planet to-day, where the flag blossoms peacefully out. Nothing strange, till I think that these men are only tongues to utter the will right royal and royal of men unseen; only the machinery for the rehearsal of a grand act for the Ides of November. Then, as I think, the theatre's narrow walls widen away and melt as if they were mist, and there are only twenty-seven of us, twenty-six sovereign States, and the one, poor, lone man who writes these lines!

I forgot the three semi-circles of men and women, packed in box and gallery, tier above tier, a zone and a half of humanity. I forgot to tell you that the old mechanics and tinkers in politics are not here, and that the halls of Congress are not emptied into Baltimore. But no matter for that, the gavel of President Dennison falls sharply; the Rev. Mr. Caddis of Ohio, made a prayer, to which old Jacob Trout, of Revolutionary memory, might have said amen. The Federal door is shut upon the Palmetto State with a clang. It opens to Missouri, and cheers greet her as she comes. It swings wide again, and Tennessee has abundant entrance. There are tears in many an eye, the world counts cold, and dry as the rock of Horeb before the prophet smote it, as Mr. Maynard so touchingly gives thanks for the loyal and bleeding hearts of East Tennessee, and says, "It will carry a joy to them like that of a great victory in the field of arms." God knows they need and deserve it all. Was it not a grand thing to be in a hall so vast that the doors opened and closed only when great States stood upon the threshold?

And now comes the Confession of Faith, losing nothing by the clear, emphatic utterance of Henry J. Raymond. It cuts a broad swath; it leaves not a weed to wave its lonely head, for any Ossian to rave about. Cheers break in all along, like the chorus to a song, and when, with the closing Resolution, a warning glance is flung over the salt water, they are all caught up, like Elijah in chariot of fire, and adopted into a new order. The gavel falls; the Rev. Mr. Barnes, of New York, says, "Hail to the victor!"

HAIR DYE! HAIR DYE!

REAGAN'S CEREBRAL Hair Dye is the best in the world. The only Harmless, True and Reliable Dye known. This splendid Hair Dye is perfect—change Red, Rusty, or Grey Hair, instantly to a Glory Black or Natural Brown, without injuring the hair or staining the skin, leaving the complexion fresh, transparent and smooth. It contains no material injurious to the skin. Patented by Actresses and Opera Singers. Every lady should have it.

DEMAS S. BARNES & CO., General Agents, 202 Broadway, New York.

HAIR DYE!

THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1864.

For President,
ABRAHAM LINCOLN
OF ILLINOIS.

For Vice-President,
ANDREW JOHNSON,
OF TENNESSEE.

A Revolt within a Revolution.

With Vallandigham loose in Ohio, whether he has doubtless gone to incite rebellion against the "arbitrary" rule of Abraham Lincoln; with Seymour's Governor of New York and ready at any time to "pave" with his "friends" in putting down the rebellion; with the copperheads all over the North ripe for revolt, it is pleasant to know that our enemies in the Confederacy have troubles similar to our own. North Carolina, never heartily in favor of secession, has now got her back up and demands peace upon the very terms that they know it can be obtained. They have two candidates in the field for Governor; Vance, who was originally elected over a secessionist of the South Carolina school, is the Jeff. Davis candidate for re-election, while W. W. Holden is the "peace" candidate. He knows perfectly well how great and outrageous was the fraud of secession, and is not backward nor mealy-mouthed in his exposition of the wicked treason. Holden is likely to be elected, unless Jeff. can interfere in some way, and he proposes to do it. So he writes to his tool Vance in this wise: "I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost. You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil warfare which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-cautious desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than suspected elsewhere, you will permit them to gather such strength as to require more violent measures than are now needed? With your influence and position, the promoters of the unfeigned discontent now prevalent in your State could be put down without the use of physical force, if you would abandon a policy of conciliation and set them at defiance. In this course, frankly and firmly pursued, you will rally around you all that is best and noblest in your State, and your triumph will be bloodless. If the contrary policy be adopted, I much fear you will be driven to the use of force to repress treason. In either event, however, be assured that you will have my cordial concurrence and assistance in maintaining with you the honor, dignity and fair name of your State, and in your efforts to crush treason, whether incipient as I believe it now to be, or more matured, as I believe, if not firmly met, it will in our future inevitably be come."

Mr. LINCOLN was about the last man in Washington to hear of his nomination on Thursday. A dispatch was sent to him, but it did not reach him, announcing that he was nominated by acclamation. Towards night he was looking over the war telegrams in Mr. Stanton's office, when a dispatch was brought to him stating that Mr. Johnson was nominated Vice President. Mr. Lincoln asked, "Is it customary to nominate a Vice President first?" A friend asked him in astonishment if he had not heard who was nominated for President? and Mr. Lincoln replied that he had not! There probably were but few men in Washington who had not heard of the action of the Convention at that time.

The WATERTOWN Daily Reformer relates an anecdote of Gen. Grant. It says: "When the General was p'Lieutenant, he was stationed for some time at Sackett's Harbor, and in those days paid frequent visits to our village. He was a famous checker player, and was 'wont to spend many an hour at the old American hotel in this absorbing game. But there was one of our citizens (whose name we are not bold to mention) who could beat the Lieutenant at his favorite game. But young Grant would never give up, and would insist on his competitor playing with him until he came out ahead, which he would at last always do. To secure this end he sometimes kept his friend up nearly all night, and would stay in town three days, studying his long-headed moves, and forcing his opponent to play until he beat him in the end. If the man declined playing when he was ahead, the lieutenant was offended, and thought him ungentlemanly in the extreme. Grant is now playing checkers in the same style with Leo on the Virginia board."

How MEN BECOME HARD-BOILED TO DANCE.—The longer men indulge in war, the more reckless of danger they become. A correspondent writing from Gen. Sherman's army, relates the following very curious incident:

Use renders these men cool and even callous in the presence of these messengers of death. Yesterday a man on the skin-mish line received a ball in the cheek which came out behind his ear, through the strong chords of the neck. A stretcher was brought, but he kicked it over, with an oath, walked to the surgeon, and had his wound probed and dressed, and returned to his company, swearing he would "make the rebels pay for that." He was from an Eastern regiment.

A CERTAIN MAN, who is very rich now, was very poor when he was a boy. When asked how he got his riches, he replied: "My father taught me never to play till my work was finished, and never to spend my money until I had earned it." If I had but an hour's work in a day, I must do that the first thing, and in an hour. After this I was allowed to play; and then I could play with much more pleasure than if I had the thought of an unfinished task before my mind. I early formed the habit of doing everything in time, and soon it became easy to do so. It is to this I owe my prosperity." Let every one who reads this do likewise.

SODA WATER.—Cold, sparkling and delicious at the Philadelphia Drug-Store.

May 23d 1864

BALTIMORE NATIONAL CONVENTION

As Described by Benjamin F. Taylor.

Scenes, Incidents, and Effects.

Correspondence of the Chicago Evening Journal.

BALTIMORE, June 8, 1864.

Taylor Secretary to the National Union Convention was no part of my errand.

The details of its action are already before the world; a few touches ethereal, a few flashes over the wings, and they were struck by lightning and immortality together.

"But I may try to give your readers, in a breath of two or three sentences, a rough sketch of the scope. When I reached Baltimore on Tuesday evening, an organization had been effected; Maine and Oregon had met together and little 'Rhody' sat at the Golden Gate's mob, civil, loyal, purposeful, and yet a mob had become an organ of voice, and the voice was ready to speak. The morrow was to be a Pentecost and yet no Babel. Inspired with one hope, one faith, one love, they were to have one utterance. It was not a deliberative body, for there was nothing to be weighed. It was not an executive body, for there was nothing to be done. There was only something to say, and it said it. We all knew what it would be, but we listened for it. Men traversed half a continent; nay, men embarked on two oceans to utter it.

So it all was on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. Front Street Theatre is thrown open for this strange drama with one act; this act with one word in it. The lofty ceiling is enshrouded with the flag; the stars hang in clusters from column and wall; like ripened fruit, that once sown on Saratoga and Bennington, on Vickburg and Mission Ridge; the stars that will light the way to Richmond, and look down serene upon dead rebellion.

And beneath the heaven of the flag, in one solid column that fills the body of the theatre, are the word-bearers of the loyal land. There is nothing strange in the crowd that I can see; sprinkles of silver among the brown heads; bows of care and eyes without a cloud. Nothing strange, until I think that these men represent every road on the planet to-day, where the flag blossoms peacefully out. Nothing strange, till I think that these men are avenging the wrongs of their countrymen. It removes the narrow walls which away and melt as they were mist, and there are only twenty-seven of us all; twenty-six sovereign States and the one, poor, lone man who writes these lines!

I forgot the three semicircles of men and women, packed in box and gallery, the above tier, a zone and a half of humanity. I forgot to tell you that the old mechanics and tinkers in politics are not here, and that the hails of Congress are not emptied into Baltimore. But no matter that the gavel of President Dennison falls sharply; the Rev. Mr. Caddis, of Ohio, made a prayer to which old Jacob Trout of Revolutionary memory, might have said, "I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost. You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil war, which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-cautious desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than suspected elsewhere, you will permit them to gather such strength as to require more violent measures than are now needed? With your influence and position, the promoters of the unfeigned discontent now prevalent in your State could be put down without the use of physical force, if you would abandon a policy of conciliation and set them at defiance. In this course, frankly and firmly pursued, you will rally around you all that is best and noblest in your State, and your triumph will be bloodless. If the contrary policy be adopted, I much fear you will be driven to the use of force to repress treason. In either event, however, be assured that you will have my cordial concurrence and assistance in maintaining with you the honor, dignity and fair name of your State, and in your efforts to crush treason, whether incipient as I believe it now to be, or more matured, as I believe, if not firmly met, it will in our future inevitably be come."

Mr. LINCOLN was about the last man in Washington to hear of his nomination on Thursday. A dispatch was sent to him, but it did not reach him, announcing that he was nominated by acclamation. Towards night he was looking over the war telegrams in Mr. Stanton's office, when a dispatch was brought to him stating that Mr. Johnson was nominated Vice President. Mr. Lincoln asked, "Is it customary to nominate a Vice President first?" A friend asked him in astonishment if he had not heard who was nominated for President? and Mr. Lincoln replied that he had not! There probably were but few men in Washington who had not heard of the action of the Convention at that time.

The WATERTOWN Daily Reformer relates an anecdote of Gen. Grant. It says: "When the General was p'Lieutenant, he was stationed for some time at Sackett's Harbor, and in those days paid frequent visits to our village. He was a famous checker player, and was 'wont to spend many an hour at the old American hotel in this absorbing game. But there was one of our citizens (whose name we are not bold to mention) who could beat the Lieutenant at his favorite game. But young Grant would never give up, and would insist on his competitor playing with him until he came out ahead, which he would at last always do. To secure this end he sometimes kept his friend up nearly all night, and would stay in town three days, studying his long-headed moves, and forcing his opponent to play until he beat him in the end. If the man declined playing when he was ahead, the lieutenant was offended, and thought him ungentlemanly in the extreme. Grant is now playing checkers in the same style with Leo on the Virginia board."

How MEN BECOME HARD-BOILED TO DANCE.—The longer men indulge in war, the more reckless of danger they become. A correspondent writing from Gen. Sherman's army, relates the following very curious incident:

Use renders these men cool and even callous in the presence of these messengers of death. Yesterday a man on the skin-mish line received a ball in the cheek which came out behind his ear, through the strong chords of the neck. A stretcher was brought, but he kicked it over, with an oath, walked to the surgeon, and had his wound probed and dressed, and returned to his company, swearing he would "make the rebels pay for that." He was from an Eastern regiment.

A CERTAIN MAN, who is very rich now, was very poor when he was a boy. When asked how he got his riches, he replied: "My father taught me never to play till my work was finished, and never to spend my money until I had earned it." If I had but an hour's work in a day, I must do that the first thing, and in an hour. After this I was allowed to play; and then I could play with much more pleasure than if I had the thought of an unfinished task before my mind. I early formed the habit of doing everything in time, and soon it became easy to do so. It is to this I owe my prosperity." Let every one who reads this do likewise.

SODA WATER.—Cold, sparkling and delicious at the Philadelphia Drug-Store.

May 23d 1864

Governor, the Patriot. Every other choice goes down before him, "like leaves in winter weather." It is Lincoln and Johnson. The words are said, the day is done. There have been little flashes of pleasant all along, but they were put out by the steady, earnest blaze of it, held by Governor Dennison.

Taylor Secretary to the National Union Convention was no part of my errand. The details of its action are already before the world; a few touches ethereal, a few flashes over the wings, and they were struck by lightning and immortality together.

"But I may try to give your readers, in a breath of two or three sentences, a rough sketch of the scope. When I reached Baltimore on Tuesday evening, an organization had been effected; Maine and Oregon had met together and little 'Rhody' sat at the Golden Gate's mob, civil, loyal, purposeful, and yet a mob had become an organ of voice, and the voice was ready to speak.

The morrow was to be a Pentecost and yet no Babel. Inspired with one hope, one faith, one love, they were to have one utterance. It was not a deliberative body, for there was nothing to be weighed.

It was not an executive body, for there was nothing to be done. There was only something to say, and it said it. We all knew what it would be, but we listened for it.

Men traversed half a continent; nay, men embarked on two oceans to utter it.

So it all was on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. Front Street Theatre is thrown open for this strange drama with one act; this act with one word in it.

The lofty ceiling is enshrouded with the flag; the stars hang in clusters from column and wall; like ripened fruit, that once sown on Saratoga and Bennington, on Vickburg and Mission Ridge; the stars that will light the way to Richmond, and look down serene upon dead rebellion.

And beneath the heaven of the flag, in one solid column that fills the body of the theatre, are the word-bearers of the loyal land. There is nothing strange in the crowd that I can see; sprinkles of silver among the brown heads; bows of care and eyes without a cloud. Nothing strange, until I think that these men represent every road on the planet to-day, where the flag blossoms peacefully out. Nothing strange, till I think that these men are avenging the wrongs of their countrymen. It removes the narrow walls which away and melt as they were mist, and there are only twenty-seven of us all; twenty-six sovereign States and the one, poor, lone man who writes these lines!

I forgot the three semicircles of men and women, packed in box and gallery, the above tier, a zone and a half of humanity.

I forgot to tell you that the old mechanics and tinkers in politics are not here, and that the hails of Congress are not emptied into Baltimore. But no matter that the gavel of President Dennison falls sharply; the Rev. Mr. Caddis, of Ohio, made a prayer to which old Jacob Trout of Revolutionary memory, might have said, "I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost. You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil war, which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-cautious desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than suspected elsewhere, you will permit them to gather such strength as to require more violent measures than are now needed? With your influence and position, the promoters of the unfeigned discontent now prevalent in your State could be put down without the use of physical force, if you would abandon a policy of conciliation and set them at defiance. In this course, frankly and firmly pursued, you will rally around you all that is best and noblest in your State, and your triumph will be bloodless. If the contrary policy be adopted, I much fear you will be driven to the use of force to repress treason. In either event, however, be assured that you will have my cordial concurrence and assistance in maintaining with you the honor, dignity and fair name of your State, and in your efforts to crush treason, whether incipient as I believe it now to be, or more matured, as I believe, if not firmly met, it will in our future inevitably be come."

I forgot to tell you that the old mechanics and tinkers in politics are not here, and that the hails of Congress are not emptied into Baltimore. But no matter that the gavel of President Dennison falls sharply; the Rev. Mr. Caddis, of Ohio, made a prayer to which old Jacob Trout of Revolutionary memory, might have said, "I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost. You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil war, which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-cautious desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than suspected elsewhere, you will permit them to gather such strength as to require more violent measures than are now needed? With your influence and position, the promoters of the unfeigned discontent now prevalent in your State could be put down without the use of physical force, if you would abandon a policy of conciliation and set them at defiance. In this course, frankly and firmly pursued, you will rally around you all that is best and noblest in your State, and your triumph will be bloodless. If the contrary policy be adopted, I much fear you will be driven to the use of force to repress treason. In either event, however, be assured that you will have my cordial concurrence and assistance in maintaining with you the honor, dignity and fair name of your State, and in your efforts to crush treason, whether incipient as I believe it now to be, or more matured, as I believe, if not firmly met, it will in our future inevitably be come."

I forgot to tell you that the old mechanics and tinkers in politics are not here, and that the hails of Congress are not emptied into Baltimore. But no matter that the gavel of President Dennison falls sharply; the Rev. Mr. Caddis, of Ohio, made a prayer to which old Jacob Trout of Revolutionary memory, might have said, "I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost. You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil war, which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-cautious desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than suspected elsewhere, you will permit them to gather such strength as to require more violent measures than are now needed? With your influence and position, the promoters of the unfeigned discontent now prevalent in your State could be put down without the use of physical force, if you would abandon a policy of conciliation and set them at defiance. In this course, frankly and firmly pursued, you will rally around you all that is best and noblest in your State, and your triumph will be bloodless. If the contrary policy be adopted, I much fear you will be driven to the use of force to repress treason. In either event, however, be assured that you will have my cordial concurrence and assistance in maintaining with you the honor, dignity and fair name of your State, and in your efforts to crush treason, whether incipient as I believe it now to be, or more matured, as I believe, if not firmly met, it will in our future inevitably be come."

I forgot to tell you that the old mechanics and tinkers in politics are not here, and that the hails of Congress are not emptied into Baltimore. But no matter that the gavel of President Dennison falls sharply; the Rev. Mr. Caddis, of Ohio, made a prayer to which old Jacob Trout of Revolutionary memory, might have said, "I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost. You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil war, which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-cautious desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than suspected elsewhere, you will permit them to gather such strength as to require more violent measures than are now needed? With your influence and position, the promoters of the unfeigned discontent now prevalent in your State could be put down without the use of physical force, if you would abandon a policy of conciliation and set them at defiance. In this course, frankly and firmly pursued, you will rally around you all that is best and noblest in your State, and your triumph will be bloodless. If the contrary policy be adopted, I much fear you will be driven to the use of force to repress treason. In either event, however, be assured that you will have my cordial concurrence and assistance in maintaining with you the honor, dignity and fair name of your State, and in your efforts to crush treason, whether incipient as I believe it now to be, or more matured, as I believe, if not firmly met, it will in our future inevitably be come."

I forgot to tell you that the old mechanics and tinkers in politics are not here, and that the hails of Congress are not emptied into Baltimore. But no matter that the gavel of President Dennison falls sharply; the Rev. Mr. Caddis, of Ohio, made a prayer to which old Jacob Trout of Revolutionary memory, might have said, "I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost. You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil war, which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-cautious desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than suspected elsewhere, you will permit them to gather such strength as to require more violent measures than are now needed? With your influence and position, the promoters of the unfeigned discontent now prevalent in your State could be put down without the use of physical force, if you would abandon a policy of conciliation and set them at defiance. In this course, frankly and firmly pursued, you will rally around you all that is best and noblest in your State, and your triumph will be bloodless. If the contrary policy be adopted, I much fear you will be driven to the use of force to repress treason. In either event, however, be assured that you will have my cordial concurrence and assistance in maintaining with you the honor, dignity and fair name of your State, and in your efforts to crush treason, whether incipient as I believe it now to be, or more matured, as I believe, if not firmly met, it will in our future inevitably be come."

I forgot to tell you that the old mechanics and tinkers in politics are not here, and that the hails of Congress are not emptied into Baltimore. But no matter that the gavel of President Dennison falls sharply; the Rev. Mr. Caddis, of Ohio, made a prayer to which old Jacob Trout of Revolutionary memory, might have said, "I fear much from the tenor of the news I receive from North Carolina, that an attempt will be made by some bad men to inaugurate movements which must be considered as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy, and which all patriots should combine to put down at any cost. You may count on my aid in every effort to spare your state, the scenes of civil war, which will devastate its homes if the designs of these traitors be suffered to make headway. I know that you will place yourself in your legitimate position in the lead of those who will not suffer the name of the old North State to be blackened with such a stain. Will you pardon me for suggesting that my only source of disquietude on the subject arises from the fear that you will delay too long the action which now appears inevitable, and that by an over-cautious desire to reclaim by conciliation men whom you believe to be sound at heart, but whose loyalty is more than

THE DYING SERGEANT.

"Soldier," I said—as the Sergeant's blood dropped faster on the floor, and a sickening pallor plainly told his pall was nearly over; "Wait not now so long and rest awhile, the march is nearly ended!"—And faster from the pouches fell the blood, with tears drops blended.

"Wait so soon," and his mind flew back to the weary field of battle.

"Shall we wait before we hear the guns or the musket's deadly rattle?"

"Yes, soldier—soon the bugle call will sound along the line,

"Tis morning yet, but rest will come to that worn heart of thine."

"Ah! Colonel, is the line of march going down into the valley?" Is that the halt? to pitch my tent after the final rally?"

And then his face lit up again—"I see the white tents gleaming—

"I see my comrades come and go, and great white banners streaming."

His strength had failed—upon the floor the soldier's blood left fast, and the weary—one from the other shore the bugle heard at last;

Eternal though God had given—and called him to the blast,

Where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

Wants, Sales, Bents, &c.

FOR SALE—Several small convenient houses for sale cheap. Terms cash, 60 days.

River St., Janesville, Wis.

FOR SALE—One Superior Top Buggy (Prince Albert,) and one superior Open Buggy.

615-14164. H. RICHARDSON.

FOR SALE at a Great Bargain.

Three houses and lot on the corner of High and State Streets, at the side of the river, near the steam-boiler, known as the Quince property.

Also several hundred acres of land in Monroe County, Wisconsin, and one lot in Rock Creek.

Inquirer of Agents. Budge & Hause, 101 First National Bank.

TO RENT—A Good Convenient House, Apply to HENRY C. PAYNE.

FOR SALE OR RENT—A Nice Cottage House, nearly new and pleasantly located.

ALLEN, GRAHAM.

ARMS FOR SALE—I offer for one and five good cultivated farms, one in Rock county and four in Dane. Said farms will be sold on reasonable terms. For further information apply to

WILLIAM H. SMITH.

542-1725m. Shonleton, Dane Co., Wis.

FOR SALE—We will sell the west half of the southwest quarter of section 23, in the town of Mauston, cheap for cash.

235-416. DENNETT, CASSIDAY & GIBBS.

FOR SALE OR RENT—A small

FARM, 2½ miles east of the city. For particular inquiries, inquire at the hardware store formerly occupied by H. L. Smith.

FOR SALE—Two Second Hand

SEAM BOILERS, one of them a small portable boiler, the other a good sized 25 ft. long locomotive boiler. These articles may be obtained at a bargain. Inquire at this office.

DAY BOARDERS—A few Day

Boarders are accommodated at the home

formerly occupied by W. W. Dohm, corner of Pleasant and Franklin streets.

FOR PAPER, RYE AND WHEAT WHISKY, call on R. E. Biddle, Bluff street, Janesville.

POARO.—A Gentleman and Lady and a few single gentlemen can be accommodated with board and lodging by applying at the house

formerly occupied by W. W. Dohm, corner of Pleasant and Franklin streets.

Twenty Per Cent. Below

the present Eastern Jobbing price.

SMITH & BOSTWICK.

June 16, 1864. 330-1240m.

FARMERS, TAKE NOTICE!

The undersigned are having seeds at Beloit, Wis.,

one hundred of these Reapers known as the Cheap, or Webber Reaper!

Notwithstanding the increase of nearly double the price over other years of all materials put into Reapers, we are going to sell for 1864 at about the same price as before. Our prices at the shop are $110.00 for single Reapers for Reaper and Mower $110. We are making every effort to sell at a low price.

JOHN M. COYGDON, Jr., Beloit, Wis.

53-1204m.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

FOR SALE—New lot for sale at a great bargain.

at a splendid FARM, situated 1½ miles west of the village of Janesville, and containing 40 acres of choice land.

The buildings are in nearly new and in good condition; a good well, a large two large dairies, fruit and ornamental trees, shrubbery, &c. Terms made easy. I will exchange this property for desirable property in or near this city.

For further particulars inquire at the subscriber's at the new woolen factory, or of M. P. Cogswell, Jr., Beloit, 53-1204m.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE—I have for sale the following real estate in the city of Janesville, Rock county, Wisconsin, the same as follows: A house, and lots No. 1 and 2 in block 11, in Palmer & Sutherland's Addition to Janesville. The house is of brick and a good size.

The house is situated on Main street, adjoining the Schuyler House on the south, formerly occupied by the late Charles Stevens.

Two houses and lots in Rockport Addition to Janesville, one house, well and two good cellars on the premises.

A house and lot No. 103 in Millman's Addition to Janesville.

TERMS EASY!

At the time of sale money may remain on in-trust, A. H. HUDSON.

Janesville, April 25, 1864. 410-2532m.

ROCK CO. WISCONSIN, LANDS

FOR SALE BY AUCTION.

Will be sold by auction, on

Thursday the 23d of June Next,

in the city of Janesville, Rock county, Wisconsin, the same as follows: A house, and lots No. 1 and 2 in block 11, in Palmer & Sutherland's Addition to Janesville. The house is of brick and a good size.

The house is situated on Main street, adjoining the Schuyler House on the south, formerly occupied by the late Charles Stevens.

Two houses and lots in Rockport Addition to Janesville, one house, well and two good cellars on the premises.

A more eligible opportunity for farmers to secure more valuable farms, or for the investment of capital,

could not be found.

For further particulars apply personally, or by letter to Mr. Dawson, No. 9 East 15th street, New York, or to Mr. H. P. Pease, Esq., corner of Main and State streets, or to Mr. John Howe, on the property at Rockport.

435-1240m.

COMMISSION HOUSE.

J. D. SKINNER & CO.,

Commission Merchants

AND PRODUCE DEALERS,

206 Kinsie St., Corner Dearborn, Chicago,

Buy and sell all kinds of Wheat, Rye, Corn, Oats,

Buckwheat, Beans, Peas, Bacon, Salt, Butter, Cheese, Lard, Tallow, Grease, Feathers, Tobacco, Dried Fish, Hides, GUNNY SACKS & BROUTE in General.

Purchase on order, at lowest market prices, every description of Merchandise, Flour, Bacon, etc.

120-1240m.

BEAUTIFUL STYLES LADIES

HATS, &c.

Mrs. DEALEY'S.

120-1240m.

NEWSPAPER ARCHIVE

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

—

Janesville Daily Gazette.

THURSDAY, JUNE 16, 1861.

THE DYING SERGEANT.

AT THE TEMPLETON THEATRE
(For the Gazette) "I said-as the Sergeant's blood dropped on the floor, and a aching pallor plainly told his pain was nearly over." "Well, half now, soon, and rest awhile, the march is nearly ended." "Half as soon, and his pain, with fair drops blended.

"Half as soon, and his mind flew back to the weary field of battle.

"Shall we half before we hear the gun or the musket's deadly rattle?"

"Yes, soldier-soon the bugle call will sound along the line.

"Tis morning yet, but rest will come to that worn heart of thine."

"Ah, Colonel, is the line of march going down into the valley?"

"Is that the hate to pitch my tent after the final rally?"

And then his face lit up aglow—"I see the white tents gleaming—

I see my comrades come and go, and great white ban-ters stretching."

His strength had failed—upon the floor the soldier's blood fell fast,

and the weary one—from the other shore the bugle boomed at last;

Eternal forbough God had given—and called him to the blos-

Where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary rest at rest.

Wants, Sales, Rents, &c.

FOR SALE—Several small convenient HOUSES for sale cheap.

Enquire of J. ARCHER,
River St., Janesville, Wis.

FOR SALE—One Superior Top
Buggy, (Prince Albert,) and one smaller Open Buggy.

H. RICHARDSON,
Off 14th St.

FOR SALE at a Great Bargain—
Three houses and lots on the corner of High and Race Streets, just west of the city, the stone clover known as the Quince property.

Also several hundred acres of land in Monroe County,

40 acres in Green county, and one in Bass Creek.

Inquire of Stevens, Cooper & Hawes, 10th and First National Bank, Janesville.

TO RENT—A Good Convenient
House. Apply to J. MYERS & BRO.
16th & 24th.

FOR SALE OR RENT—A Nice Cottage House, newly now and pleasantly incated.

myself ALEX. GRAHAM.

FARMS FOR SALE—I offer for a fine well cultivated farm, one in Rock county and four in Dane. Said farms will be sold on reasonable terms. For further information apply to W. H. WILLIAMS, Agent,
Stoughton, Dane Co., Wis.

236 Main St.

FOR SALE OR RENT—A small
FARM, 2 1/2 miles east of the city. For particulars inquire at the hardware store formerly occupied by H. C. Smith.

FOR SALE—Two Second Hand
FARM TOOLS, one of them part of the other, about $25 the heaviest. Also two other pieces about $25 the heaviest. These articles may be obtained at a moderate price at this office.

34th & 24th.

DAY BOARDERS—A few Day
Boarders can be accounted for at the house formerly occupied by W. W. D. Allen, corner of Pleasant and Franklin streets.

46th & 24th.

FOR PURE RYE AND WHEAT
WHISKY, call on Kent's Distillery, Main Street, Janesville.

236 Main St.

BOAR!—A Gentleman and Lady and a few single persons can be accommodated with board and lodging by applying at this house
formerly occupied by W. W. D. Allen, corner of Pleasant
and Franklin streets.

46th & 24th.

FOR SALE BY MCKEEY & BRO.—
Twenty Cords of WOOD, cut and split ready for the stove. Will be sold in small quantities.

Janesville, April 26, 1861.

STRAYED—From the Subscribers in the city of Janesville, on the evening of the 24th instant, a black mare, eight or nine years old, with a black man and tail, and a star in the forehead, in good condition. Whoever will give information where said mare may be found shall be rewarded. J. L. KIMBALL.
May 25, 1861.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE
FOR SALE—I now offer for sale at a great gain a splendid FARM, situated 1 1/2 miles from town, just west of the city. Said farm contains 100 acres of choice land. The buildings are newly and in good condition; a good well of water, two large oysters, fruit and ornamental trees, ashberry, &c. Terms made easy. Will sell exclusively to the property for double property in or near this city.

For further particulars inquire of the subscriber at the new woolen factory, or of Mr. COOPER, 10th and First National Bank.

J. L. KIMBALL.

53rd & 24th Sts.

TERMS EASY!

A part of the purchase money may remain an account.

J. L. KIMBALL.

44th & 24th.

ROCK CO. WISCONSIN, LANDS
FOR SALE BY AUCTION.

Will be sold by auction on

Thursday the 23d of June Next.

In the city of Janesville, Rock County, Wisconsin, thirty-two hundred and forty (340) acres of land, all situated in agricultural land in the State of Wisconsin, and including the villages of Rockport, with the Beloit & Madison Railroad running through them, and the Milwaukee & Southern Wisconsin Railroad on their border, and all costs of about 100,000 dollars, and a large number of houses, barns, and other articles selected for their present value for investment, nearly thirty years ago, as the best in all respects, in Rock county, and this country, it is well known in the country.

They will be sold in small parcels, and the purchase money, less twenty or thirty per cent, which must be paid in cash, may remain on mortgage at seven per cent, interest, for ever or for years, excepting time of payment.

There will also be sold at the same time and place, and in the same manner, but wholly for cash, twenty two hundred (2200) acres of prairies in Marathon county, and the town of Waukesha, selected about eight years ago.

A more eligible opportunity for farmers to secure
most desirable farms, for the investment of capital,
could not be found.

Persons who will apply personally, or by letter to Mr. Dawson, No. 9, Park 15th street, New York, will be in Janesville ten days before the sale takes place; to Mr. J. F. Rose, Esq., corner of Franklin and Main, or to Mr. John Howes, on the property at Rockport, 43rd & 24th.

COMMISSION HOUSE.

J. D. SKINNER & CO.,

Commission Merchants

AND PRODUCE DEALERS.

206 Kinzie St., Corner Dearborn, Chicago,

Buy and sell all kinds of Wheat, Ry. Corn, Oats, Barley, Hops, Hops, Bacon, Bait, Must, Salt,
Butter, Cheese, Lard, Yellow, Green, Peacock, Eggs,
Dried Fruits, Hines,

Gunny Sacks & Provisions in General.

Purchase on order, at lowest market prices, every description of Merchandise, Flour, Groves, Bacon, etc.

135th & 24th.

BEAUTIFUL STYLES LADIES

DR. RICE & CO.,

DR

COMMERCIAL.

REPORTED FOR THE LAST TWELVE MONTHS BY DUMP & GALE, GROCER AND PRODUCE DEALERS.

JANESVILLE, June 10, 1864.

There was no material change to note in the grain market to-day from yesterday, except in wheat, which is 10¢ higher, choice samples reaching as high as $1.10, being very firm at full quotations. Receipts about 1,000 bushels.

We make up prices as follows:

WHEAT—Extra milling spring at $1.05 per bushel; common to good shipping grade at $1.25 per bushel.

OATS—Active at 61¢ per bushel.

RYE—Good demand at $1.05 per bushel.

CORN—Blotted per bushel at $1.00 per bushel; our do. 80¢ per bushel.

BARLEY—Prime samples at $1.05 per bushel; common to fair at 90¢ per bushel.

TIMOTHY SEED—Good to choice at $1.00 per bushel for 10¢.

DRESSED HOGS—Range at $0.25 to 75¢ for light to heavy.

BEANS—Prime white $2.00 per bushel; mixed lots $1.25 per bushel.

POTATOES—Choice Netherland and Pease Blows at 10¢ per bushel; common and mixed lots 16¢ per bushel.

BUTTER—Starch at 18¢ per bushel for good to choice roll.

EGGS—Fair supply at 12¢ per dozen.

POTUARY—Turkeys, dressed, 80¢ to 90¢. Chickens 75¢ per pound.

HIDES—Green 75¢ to 80¢ dry 15¢ to 40¢.

SHIRT BELTS—Range from $1.00 to $2.00 each.

SHACO—Fair to prime leaf 7¢ to 10¢.

WOOL—Ranges from 35¢ to 50¢ for unashed.

FL.—SPRING at retail at $3.25 per lb. to 6¢.

PRICE CURRENT OF GROCERIES.

SAFES—

Glendale, Crucible, and Powdered. 25

N. V. & Co. Copper. 25

B. & C. Copper. 25

AA Portland. 25

Portico. 25

STRIKES—

Chicago Sugar House. 100

Colgate's. 25

Amber. 10

